“By the Sweat of Their Brows:

Researching to Discover the Work of Our Ancestors” presented by John Althouse

In this presentation, I will examine some sources that providing information about the work of our ancestors. The information acquired may add context and details to our family chronicles.

“It was a dark and stormy night ... ”

Snoopy as a writer started his works with the above line, a rather predictable choice. An effective teller of family stories needs a strong beginning. We ask all coming to the meeting to share an idea, an opening paragraph , or an opening from an article in RS or similar genealogy journal used to begin a story and capture the readers’ interest. Keep it short 2 minutes or less is preferred.

Looking for individuals who would be willing to present at future Postscript meetings.

ANYONE INTERESTED IN WRITING FAMILY HISTORY IS WELCOME AT THIS MEETING!
